The PsyD/PhD School Psychology Program within the School of Education of Duquesne University intends to provide its graduate students with the opportunity to transfer knowledge and skills learned within the classroom setting to applied situations by participation in advanced practicum experiences with populations birth-21 years of age. Faculty members of the Program are grateful for your assistance in preparing students for entry into the profession. The Program aims for advanced practicum students to participate in applied experiences that expand student skills in one or more profession-wide competencies prior to pre-doctoral internship.

Please check the profession-wide competency domain(s) in which the advanced practicum student will engage in activities:

Research Assessment

Ethical and legal standards Intervention

Individual and cultural diversity Supervision (of others)

Professional values, attitudes, and behaviors Consultation and interprofessional/ interdisciplinary skills Communication and interpersonal skills

Additional goals or explanation (if desired): My professional experience has primarily been with young children and I am interested in branching out to gain more experience with middle and high school populations. I would also like to gain experience by attending the Friday team meetings to discuss cases. In the spring, I am also interested in gaining experience conducting assessments with ESL students.

Supervision is essential for advanced practicum students to develop profession-wide competencies and to keep the field supervisor informed regarding the student's activities under the supervisor's practice credentials. The field site supervisor agrees to:

1. Provide ongoing and regularly scheduled supervision of the advanced practicum student (approximately one hour per week).
2. Complete two Program-provided evaluations of the advanced practicum student.
3. Communicate with the university practicum supervisor as needed.

The practicum student agrees to:

1. Participate in regularly scheduled supervision with the field site supervisor.
2. Participate in regularly scheduled supervision with the university supervisor.
3. Alert both field and university supervisors if unable to attend practicum.
4. Engage in on-site practicum activities for 8 hours per week.

The start date of the advanced practicum experience is 08/26/2024 and the end date is

05/07/2025

. The advanced practicum experience will not start earlier, nor end later than the dates above unless the field site, the Program, and the advanced practicum student all agree to the modification.
